APPOMATTOX ASSOCIATION. The Hollywood Memorial Association has done much to keep up interest in the Confederacy's cause and those who fell in its behalf. The annual decoration of the graves of these dead and the at-tendant exercises have attracted thou-sands of people to the cemetary on the sands of people to the cemetery on the both of every May, and nave helped to bind and seal the ties which link the past with the present and the future.

Recently that body, through its secretary, Mrs. E. C. Minor, communicated with the ladies of Appointance and suggested to them to decorate the graves of the eighteen Confederates and one Union soldier buried in the cemetery at that historic place. These good women at once took the matter under advisement, and through the aid of Mr. R. B. Poore, or that place, the Ladies' Memorial Association of Appointatox was formed. The Hollywood Association subsequently presented to its infant association the old Confederate flag so long usel in draping the Confederate Soldiers' monument in Hollywood Cemetery, these colors to be

LIFE IN THE PRISON.

Daily Incidents Within the Walls of the State Penitentiary.

Something of noted prisoners.

Several Who are There Now, and Others Who Have Served Their Terms and Gone—Interesting Stories of the Convicts.

The recent arrival at the penitentiary of the noted train-robber, Morganfield, has arrawn attention to that historic prison, which sits upon the brow of Oregon Hill, and is a continual reminder to wrong-deers of what they may expect when they overstep the laws which are laid down for the government of this people.

Within the four, gaunt, white walls that surround the prison are many prominent criminals. taking punishment for crimes they have committed, and some of the cases are of an exceedingly interesting character.

In fact, the prison itself is of more than ordinary interest, and one who has never been within its walls will find much there or to do so a gain. success which cannot be questioned.

The grounds around the prison are kept in beautiful order, the courts within the walls, and the cells, and other apartments which come under his immediate supervision are as clean as a ball-room floor, and, were the fact not made manifest by the number of striped inmates continually at work, and the bars and grated windows, which loom up on all sides, the casual visitor might imagine himself in almost any other place than one of incarceration.

HOW THE PRISONERS EAT. Meal-time is the most interesting hour for visiting the prison. Then the hardreds of convicts, whose apartments form a half-circle within the main enclosure, are released from their cells and pass down through the corridors out into the court, where they receive their portion and file back to their rooms. A Dispatch man went out to the prison one day last week, and was shown through by As-sistant-Superintendent White, who very interestingly explained the many details of prison-life. The scribe's visit was well marching out to the convicts is cooked in a subterranean kitchen, which is presided over by an old prisoner, who has been under the care of the guards for a number of years. He has a number of reassistante, who work under his direction, and, although the choicest viands are not prepared by them, what they do cook is of the very best, and nothing but good, wholesome food is ever seat from that kitchen. All of the cooking is done by steam, and a dozen or more immense yats, all as clean as new ping, are ranged. vats, all as clean as new pins, are ranged vals, and the side of the walls, and in them along the side of the walls, and in them the meats are boiled or the coffee is made, or most anything within the range of

Hon. Thomas H. Paine.

After arguing the inconsistency between the utterances of Mr. Carlisle in 1878 and his recent speeches, he said the opponents of free coinage had for years shielded themselves behind ambiguous phrases, and have pretended to be adherents of himstallism. It has for consists of a large cup of coffee and a loaf of hot wheat- or corn-breal, and the same portion is allotted to each man. Those who have any money on depositing in the office may at their request receive extra food, which is cooked for them in the prison kitchen.

CAN MAKE PIN-MONEY.

Every opportunity is given the men to accumulate some little money while in prison, and this is saved for them until their term expires, when it is turned over to them as a nucleus with which to again start life. Each man is hired out by linited State is a constant of the consists of a large cup of coffee and a loaf of bimetallism. It has for them take the last for them and make the issue clear and distinct. Since Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle have now pronounced for gold, there is no longer any need for doubt or concealment. A universal gold standard would be a crime against mankind. Our nation, as a debtor nation would suffer much more than England from a gold standard. The speaker quoted from a memorial presented the will never have a chance to them as a nucleus with which to again start life. Rigid discipline among the inmates is maintained at all times, and no special privileges are allowed to any. The slightest infraction of rules is punished, either by confinement in the dungson or in a corporal fashion, and, although this punishment is at all times tempered with mercy, it is sufficiently severe to make a repetition of the offence onlykely. The main building of the prison—that portion in which are l-cated the cells—was erected in 1750. Secretly thereafter Aaron Burr was confined therein while awaiting trial for tenson. His daughter, who was afterwards lost at sea, remained there with him. Since that time many noted prisoner, have served terms.
